"There is an idea that people we love come back as a butterfly. I did want to write to tell you how sad we were to hear that she had died from her illness, so soon. I have seen on Facebook what a marvellous friend she was to so many people, and our family have so much to thank her for. She was a true and wonderful friend to my son, and he needed a friend like to her to get him through a troubled and difficult time. You must feel so proud that she was superwoman to so many. We have been thinking of you a lot this week, and send hugs through the air waves. We hope that the joyfulness that she brought everywhere will help you through this difficult time." "To both your families we are saddened that Annie has left us all. We all will love our memories that we will treasure dearly" "I am so so sorry and saddened to hear this. I can't believe it. Not to mention the laughs about the crazy novelty items that you two bought each other for fun! I first met her when I was young and impressionable, probably about 15 years old! She taught me to grab life by the balls and to go chase my dreams! That will always stay with me. She helped me so much that words cannot describe, and I am devastated I never got to say goodbye. She will forever be in my thoughts and memories of her treasured forever" "Our deepest and heart-felt condolences, sympathy and love to you and your family at this very sad and difficult time.
